I was traveling westbound on I-275 when just past the Hamilton Ave. exit in the middle of a snow "whiteout" when I saw cars skidding in front of me. I managed to ^{steer} ~~swing~~ towards the median, but ~~was~~ ^{as} I stopped was hit from behind and shoved into a car ^{stopped} in front of me. Once I was fully stopped, I turned off the ignition and saw a 55-gal barrel of green liquid next to my car (spewing ^{the} green liquid). I grabbed my purse and ran as fast as I could away from the accident as I saw semis behind me skidding and I didn't want to be crushed. This happened between 11:30 - 11:45 AM I think. I exchanged business cards w/ the driver in front of me Indiana plate RJ X316 after everything stopped.

I was driving just pulled on the highway when the snow/wind started picking up. I was in the middle lane going 40 mph (I remember looking down at speed). Cars in front of me disappeared I was scared so I began to slow down. When I could see the first vehicle in front of me it was a semi that was turned completely perpendicular to the road. I pumped brakes they locked I was able to veer left of the semi. After passing the semi which was still sliding/spinning there were rows of cars rearended by each other. I aimed for in between the rows of cars. I hit/bumped on my left side of my car then I hit/bumped the right side of my car. I finally hit the wired median and stopped, behind me I could hear cars crashing I looked through my rear view mirror and cars were still being hit. I opened my door and saw ppl running trying to get over/under median. I attempted to climb under when I was almost clear; a truck broke through the median pulling the wire tight, I was hit in the back by the wire. I also witnessed a little girl who was hit with the wire as well.

OFFICER'S NAME LOCATION

I was traveling westbound on 275. It was very lightly snowing but was not sticking to the ground. As I was traveling in the left lane, a whiteout occurred reducing visibility to nothing. I immediately started applying my brakes and reduced my speed to ~30 MPH by the time the whiteout cleared. I then noticed cars stopped in all lanes directly in front of me. I slammed on the brakes and could feel the ABS kick in but did not decelerate due to the road being a sheet of ice. I split in-between two vehicles in front of me that were stopped but struck both. Coming to a stop. I was then rear-ended by a red SUV. After 20 seconds or so, I exited the vehicle due to a fuel leak to my right from a semi.

I crossed under the center cable wire dividers. I turned around to witness the cable restraints break allowing the cable to become loose. At that time, a 12-y.o. girl was crossing the cables and was struck in the head/neck by the cable. Blood was pouring from her ear canal. We called 911, and then ~~presented~~ an off-duty firefighter administered CPR. I did not appear that she had a pulse or was breathing.

Cars were skidding into each other on my right, and I moved farther to my left to avoid being hit, ~~the~~ there room for me to come to a safe stop. However just as I stopped ~~slid a car~~ I was hit on the right rear end by a small van which slid into another car & stopped. By this time there was no other movement of vehicles. AROUND 11:00 a.m. just near Mt. Healthy exit on I-275-W, the cars in front of me started slowing down. All of a sudden I felt like I hit ice or something, because I was losing traction but all of a sudden I heard cars hitting each other around me, and I saw a van from the far left lane in front of me hit a car in the next lane. Then I saw a white truck, like a gravel truck in my rear view and I knew we were going to be hit. We were hit pretty hard. I had my 3 1/2 yr. old grandson in the back in his car seat, but thankfully he was okay. I didn't hit any cars. We moved over to the side and most all the cars ahead of me we able to drive away. I got out and checked the car and the damage was just in the back. I felt a little shaky and I was able to drive about 2 miles on I-275 to get home. All of the ambulances were coming, and I left since I had my grandson, and my rear window was blown out, but I could drive very slowly. My head is a little sore in the back, Scotty said his head hurt a little.

At that point I thought I had escaped unscathed. However, one car behind me swerved to my left and went into the median. A semi on my right swerved to my right narrowly missing my car. I put on my emergency flashers so other cars might see me as they approached. Unfortunately this was not the case. A lady in one of the cars in front of me exited her car and ran into the median. Cars and semis came one after another slamming into the back of us as well as other cars. It was then that I began to smell gasoline. Driving West on 275 when the visability suddenly got very bad. The car in front of us started going to the left and seconds later it was a wall of cars. I started pumping brakes but was sliding. At that point, I knew we were going to crash, so I was trying to figure out the safest spot to hit. I avoided hitting the first car, slid by it where there was an opening next to a semi truck. We hit ^(red car) and it buckled the front hood. Everyone was okay, just scared. I then looked up in the rear view mirror and saw a Blue semi truck heading for us. I told everyone we were about to get hit and to brace themselves. It rammed us and after that we felt a few more hits and were getting jostled. before Once the hitting (of our car) subsided, we decided to get out b/c we could smell gas and there was steam coming out from under our buckled hood. To get to the median, we all had to crawl over a car's hood to our left. Our car was surrounded by 2 semi trucks (RT and behind us) and 2 cars - left and front. It is a Miracle that no one had a scratch when you look @ our car and where it was.

At first, the road was empty, which I did think was weird, but with snowing and all, I ~~wasn't~~ I drove at the speed limit or 2 miles less.

I came to a safe stop and didn't hit the car in front of me, but when I stopped, another car rear-ended me before it stopped. It just kept wrecking endlessly. I wasn't moving; I was at halt, but the car behind me hit me and pushed me forward.
